ABOUT MELISSA

Cutting her teeth in the legal industry working with a sole practitioner whilst she studied for her Bachelor of Commerce and Bachelor of Laws, Melissa then went on to work as an investigator with the ACCC and as a Senior Associate with commercial litigation firms in the Sydney CBD. 19 years ago, she formed Shire Legal, assisting clients in business, property and estates law.

Over that time, Melissa has shared her knowledge and experience by creating her own radio show (The Everyday), speaking for numerous community and business groups, mentoring aspiring lawyers and university students and teaching legal studies students at TAFE. She recently obtained her Masters of Applied Law (specialising in business law).

This desire over her 32 years of experience to share her knowledge, coupled with her frustration in seeing way too many business owners getting into legal difficulties because they didn't have the core business law knowledge to start with, has led Melissa to now focus her efforts on developing an online course and community for business owners to know the laws of business, and know how to put that knowledge to work - known as Business Know How.

In her spare time, Melissa enjoys trail running in the National Park near her home, as well as playing the piano and performing in musical theatre productions.
